GENERAL

The Oncology Section encourages the submission of manuscripts that address issues of relevance to oncologic physical therapy in all spheres. All correspondence is sent to the first author named on the manuscript, unless otherwise requested. Research reports receive the highest priority for publication, but case reports, technical reports, literature reviews, and perspective papers are all solicited on an equal basis.

Rehabilitation Oncology accepts manuscripts for publication with the understanding that the manuscript, with any original research findings or data, has not been published previously or is not under consideration for publication elsewhere. Manuscripts that have been presented elsewhere orally at a scientific or professional meeting should contain a footnote stating that fact, for the benefit of the reader. Manuscripts published in Rehabilitation Oncology are the property of the Oncology Section, and may not be published elsewhere without the permission of the Section. The Section reserves the right to reproduce, publish, and distribute the manuscript. For research reports, a statement that the rights of animal and human subjects have been protected must be included with the manuscript. Authors must obtain written permission to publish photographs in which the subjects are recognizable. Authors must also obtain and submit written permission from original sources to publish illustration, figures, or tables taken from those sources.

MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION

For format and reference style, please consult the American Medical Association (AMA) Manual of Style, 9th edition, published by William and Wilkins of Baltimore, Maryland. All manuscripts should be typed double-spaced, including references, with pages numbered; font size is preferred in 12-point type. Every manuscript should contain a title page and a short abstract. On the title page, include the title, author(s), and footnote containing basic autobiographical data of the authors. The abstract should be 150 words or less. Referencing is by Arabic superscripts that appear sequentially in the text. The references should be a separate sheet(s) at the end of the manuscript. Please use Index Medicus for abbreviations. Tables should be numbered consecutively and placed after the references. Figures should be numbered consecutively and appear after the references and tables. Appendices should be numbered consecutively and positioned at the end of the paper. Kindly submit 2 copies of the paper, along with a computer disc, and permission statements. A cover letter should accompany the manuscript, giving the corresponding author's address, day and evening phone numbers, fax number, and E-mail address.

Manuscripts should be sent to the Editor of Rehabilitation Oncology at the address above.
